Zinober is Håkon Storm's first release with solo guitar only. In this album Storm reveals himself as a virtuoso player and a distinguished composer. As a guitarist, he works in the span between exploratory, expressive playing and melodic lines in combination with lyrical melodies. This makes the album an exciting journey. Seven different acoustic and electric guitars creates many fine variations. The recording was made live at Rainbow Studios in Oslo, with J.E. Kongshaug at the controls. The recording is also exquisite sound wise.

Zinober is Håkon Storm's fourth release under his own name. The guitarist, composer and band leader comes from a stylistically broad background. He is known from mainstream jazz, fusion and rock projects, as well as experimental styles.

In numerous projects, Storm worked with some of Norway's best and most respected musicians. He also participated in international projects with a.o. Jimmy Halperin, John Engels, and Winther-Storm. As a composer he has produced music for big bands and various smaller ensembles. Storm regularly performs with his own projects, and has toured in Europe, Japan and USA. Storm is also a teacher at the Norwegian Academy of Music.
